WHAT is LANA?

The Lymphology Association of North America, LANA, is a non-profit corporation offering an internationally accredited certification examination to healthcare professionals who diagnose and/or treat lymphedema and related disorders. LANA was created following the 1998 American Cancer Society Lymphedema Workshop recommendation to establish certification guidelines to assure that lymphedema specific treatments and associated training facilities meet the high standards of care for their programs and patients.

LANA's alliance of medical professionals from diverse disciplines utilizes their comprehensive knowledge of the lymphatic system to assess, plan and provide therapeutic interventions to help restore or maximize function and improve quality of life for those with lymphedema or related disorders.

Since 1999, LANA has partnered with Prometric to create and administer a validated comprehensive exam.

WHY is LANA Accreditation Important?

CLT-LANA Credentials:

- Demonstrate leadership, commitment, and expertise to patients, medical providers, insurers, and employers.
- Represent the highest level of competency and dedication to advanced learning, validating mastery of skills and knowledge.
- Enhance visibility, marketability, and compensation for LANA Specialists.
- Signify leadership and influencer status to industry and stakeholders.
- Distinguish specialists who have gone beyond continuing education to achieve an accredited board certification.
